THE GOSSIP OF GOTHAM.

The Belmonts and Their New Sister-in-Law.

A New Duke Comes to Wed—Celebrities Who Will Not Pay Their Bills—Depew Is Annoyed by Politicians.

[COPYRIGHT, 1896.]

No misunderstanding could be greater than the one prevailing to the effect that the Belmonts are incensed at their kinsman for having married the lady who was Mrs. Vanderbilt.

The Belmont brothers are so annoyed by the circulation of these stories they went out of their way to prove their falsity. Before the Belmonts went abroad, the brothers dined with her en famille.

It is very important to the Belmonts to have no discussion in the family at the present time, because Perry Belmont is anxious to make the run for governor of New York and he will need all the influence he can muster.

Perry Belmont presented to his sister-in-law the famous medallion of the dey of Algiers, given to his immortal grandfather by that potentate himself.

August has placed his racing stable at the couple's disposal, and they will often be at his stud when the European tour is over. While abroad the Belmonts will be for a time the guests of Ambassador Bayard. It was a peculiar piece of gaucherie, however, to announce that Mrs. Belmont, as mother of the duchess of Marlborough, will be presented to Queen Victoria. Under no circumstances can divorced women be presented to her majesty. It is an announced that the Fifth avenue palace to be built by O. H. P. Belmont will cost fully $1,000,000. This fact shows how greatly his wealth has increased during the past ten years.

War and Clergy.

The unanimity of the pulpit in New York in the desirability of peace has brought the clergy of all denominations together, and greatly accelerated the movement in favor of church union.

To employ the picturesque phrases of Bishop Potter, the very church steeples appear to embrace each other. Although the movement for church union has all along appeared very chimerical to the conservative clergy, recent events seem to indicate a very near approach to it. Bishop Potter is the most sanguine in his expectations, and is working very hard to bring it about. He anticipates very beneficial effects from the forthcoming encyclical of Pope Leo on the subject. It is not improbable that a reply to his holiness in the spirit of his encyclical will be made by the American clergy, thanking him for his efforts in behalf of a cause too long neglected. Bishop

Potter, by the way, is one of the few American clergymen, outside of the Catholic church, of whom the pope has heard. He expressed a warm admiration for him and for Phillips Brooks to a party of American pilgrims in Rome some years ago. It is odd, however, that the church union outside of New York should be so very weak.

Depew Disgusted.

Chauncey M. Depew is not a little annoyed by the attempts made to boom him as New York's choice for the presidency. He went to the length of having it privately intimated to his friends that as he is a Morton man it would be indelicate in him to countenance any attempt to boom himself. Mr. Depew added that as he is to be elected delegate to the convention, he is in honor bound to see that no effort is made to bring him in even as second choice. This effectually kills the Depew boom.

The great after-dinner orator has been addressing himself of late to the subject of Mr. Morton's age. He points out that the longer a man lives the longer he is likely to live, being an excellent liver by the time he reaches 70. Mr.

Morton, says Mr. Depew, is bound to the earth by ties of duty, and cannot leave it until he has served a term as president. "I wouldn't agree to pay

Mr. Morton an annuity for a good round sum. He is too healthy to make it pay."

It looks as if Mr. Depew and not Mr. Platt would be the master mind of the Morton forces when the great gathering assembles. The Morton feeling in Pennsylvania is attributed largely to Mr. Depew's diplomatic games.

Delinquent Celebrities.

The great portrait painters of New York have found it necessary to enter into an agreement that reflects very seriously upon some celebrities of national eminence in this country. It seems that not a few great men have a habit of sitting to famous portrait painters in New York and then forgetting to pay their bills. Some of the artists have despaired of ever getting their money, and have been told that the fame and prestige they acquired through their sitters should be ample compensation.

These remarks are attributed to two men, one of whom has held very high office indeed, and another of whom aspires to it. So the artists have held a meeting and solemnly vowed to charge eminent men a good round fee in advance before beginning to paint them.

The grievance of the knights of the brush is shared in by many New York hotel proprietors and tradesmen. Celebrities who visit New York are notoriously slow in paying their bills. Members of the United States senate are especially remiss in this respect. The consequence is a tendency to fight

A COLUMN OF VERSE.

Leap Year Forever.

When men propose Each mortal knows That all things go awry.

For lovers meek Or fall to speak.

Though maidens softly sigh.

They make mistakes, And cause heartbreaks In every walk of life;

They choose, and yet They often get The wrong one for a wife.

They lack the nerve That ought to serve In trying times like these;

And so, world o'er, One year in four The girls do as they please.

They have one year— The one just here— In which to prove they're "new,"

When they may court, Like men disposed, And do all men may do.

In days of old, As we've been told, This proved a pleasant plan;

But now, alas! It's come to pass They're rather crowding man.

So it is plain With might and main To all these "rights" they'll cling.

And leap year'll be, As you shall see, A most unending thing.
